Dr. Creado's treatment contract:

- My recommendations are based on what I think is going to be beneficial to you, and the decision to incorporate those recommendations, is yours.
- When I make a medication recommendation, I provide you resources to look up the medication, supplements and talk to you briefly about potential side effects. If you accept a prescription, you have consented to treatment.
- I want to make it clear, that you need to reach out for help (calling the emergency number, 911 or reaching out to family or friends) PRIOR to attempting any self-harm or harm to others. That is a cornerstone of a therapeutic relationship, without which, it puts us in a situation where we feel the patient may not be completely candid about how close they are to the edge, that they are not invested in the therapeutic process, and limits our ability to help them.
- Just as my patients are free to do what they want with the recommendations I put forth, I too, have the right to refuse to prescribe certain medications or interventions that I may believe may not be in my patients best interests. For example, I am very cautious about prescribing controlled substances, and usually require my patients to submit to random drug screenings, to make sure they are not using illicit substances in conjunction with the treatment, as well as not change the doses, misuse or abuse, or share medications they have been prescribed (by me or other providers).
- I have a right to terminate the therapeutic relationship in circumstances where I may feel the patient is disrespectful to me or other staff, engages in disruptive behavior, is not invested in the therapeutic relationship, is not compliant with my recommendations, wants to pressure me into prescribing medications or other interventions that may not be in their best interests, or where they continue to use substances which will limit my ability to help them or where they refuse random drug screening or other tests to determine their compliance with the treatment plan.

- If the patient or I decide, for any reason to terminate the therapeutic relationship, I will provide 30 days of support in terms of prescription refills, and urgent calls in the interim. If you are becoming manic or depressed or having thoughts of hurting yourself or others, please call 911 or have somebody take you to the nearest ER. You can then look for another provider within the Amen network or outside it.
- It is important for my patients to schedule follow-ups, even when stable, at least every 6 months, for continuity of care, prescription refills, and monitoring for symptoms and side effects. The onus is on the patient, to schedule these with one of my assistants. If you do not do this, then it will be hard to get a follow-up appointment at a time of your choice, due to a long wait list. Additionally, I will assume that you have decided to work with another provider. Far too often in the past, we had situations where patients would not follow-up in time, slowly worsen, taper off medications or stop implementing the other recommendations, deteriorate further, end up in crisis or in a psychiatric hospital, and then reach out to my clinic. This clinic is not a psychiatric ER/ urgent care facility.
- I thank you for your understanding.

Yours faithfully,

Dr. Shane A. Creado, MD
